Culture at Lund University

Culture has an intrinsic value for people and society. The Lund University Cultural and Public Centres comprise the Botanical Garden, the Historical Museum and Skissernas Museum, with their world-class collections, and Odeum, which has a 250-year history of music-making.

The Cultural and Public Centres offer the public, as well as university staff and students, a wealth of cultural activities that pass on our cultural heritage and seek new artistic expressions for the present and the future. They also form an arena for the development of research and education and provide meeting places for the University and society.

Lund University, with its 350 years of history, has a strong tradition of the arts and a role in generating culture in society. By strengthening and developing this role, the University promotes its collaboration with the public, municipalities and county councils, and highlights its mission to serve mankind.
