DECISION

16 February 2018

Reg. no STYR 2017/1906

Lund University Appointment Rules

With the support of Chapter 2 Section 2 first paragraph point 9 of the Higher Education Ordinance (1993:100) Lund University decides on the following appointment rules for academic staff.

The appointment rules comprise the regulations governing appointments of academic staff at Lund University. The rules presuppose that all faculties and units appointing teaching staff have clear delegation rules and information on the recruitment process. Given the different traditions and circumstances of the faculties, further specification of qualification requirements and assessment criteria will be required at faculty level. However, faculties are not allowed to lower the qualification requirements.

1. Introduction

Good teaching staff are a condition for Lund University to achieve success in teaching, research and interaction with wider society. Recruitment and encouragement of staff development are therefore important components in efforts to meet the University's overall goals. Among these goals are that Lund University shall be an attractive workplace and a workplace where personal and professional development are promoted. Systematic attention to gender equality is an essential instrument for achieving an even gender balance among University staff.

The following regulatory framework for academic appointments and promotions of teaching staff is based on the principle that the University is to offer a clear and transparent path to appointment and development within teaching and research and that the level of skill required may vary within teaching and research/artistic activities, depending on the duties of the post. The point of departure is that all appointments related to teaching and research shall be permanent teaching posts. Fixed-term teaching posts, such as postdoctoral fellowships, research fellowships and posts as associate senior lecturer, are intended to provide career development in both research and teaching and an opportunity for individuals to develop their skills in preparation for a continued academic career.

Teaching staff at Lund University and their professional and personal development are extremely important to the University's excellence in teaching and research and for the management and development of different areas of university activities.

In order to facilitate mobility and international recruitments, vacancies should be advertised abroad and with broadly defined subject specialisations.

Training in teaching and learning in higher education

A part of the requirements for appointment to positions as lecturer, senior lecturer and professor at Lund University is that the applicant has completed at least 5 weeks of training in teaching and learning in higher education and has developed the knowledge, skills and approaches required for professional teaching in higher education, in accordance with the national targets of the Association of Swedish Higher Education (SUHF). In the absence of such training, an assessment will be carried out to ascertain whether the applicant documents equivalent knowledge and skills in the application. If there are valid reasons, for example that the applicant has lacked opportunities to acquire the requisite knowledge in his or her former positions, an appointment can still be made. In such cases, the appointee is to complete the required training within the first two years of employment.

Employed teaching staff with the required qualification of 5 weeks of training in teaching and learning in higher education should be offered the opportunity to undertake further teacher training of at least 5 weeks as part of their duties.

2. General regulations for recruitment

2.1 General principles for recruitment

The aim in recruiting academic staff shall be to find those with the best possible skills and potential for the duties of the post.

Lund University shall strive in its recruitment to achieve an even gender balance within the different types of positions and in consideration of the context in which the individual will work. In the documentation produced for decisions to provide information about a vacancy, potential candidates are to be described with reference to the gender equality targets.

Direct appointment

The Vice-Chancellor may appoint a professor without a call for applications to the post. Such direct appointments are to take place in accordance with the current regulations decided by the University Board.

2.2 Types of position, recruitment and special forms of employment

Academic staff refers to

- professors
- visiting professors
- adjunct professors
- senior professors
- senior lecturers
- adjunct senior lecturers
- associate senior lecturers
- postdoctoral fellows
- lecturers, and
- adjunct lecturers.

A professor, senior lecturer or lecturer shall preferably be offered an indefinite-term appointment. A fixed-term appointment as a senior lecturer or lecturer may be offered in accordance with the Employment Protection Act (1982:80). In addition, Chapter 4

Sections 10–12 of the Higher Education Ordinance apply for fixed-term appointments. In connection with retirement, a professor can be employed with the title senior professor in accordance with the Employment Protection Act.

2.2.1 Definitions

Adjunct positions

An adjunct professor is appointed for a fixed term and has his or her main professional activities outside academia. The individual shall meet the qualification requirements for appointment as a professor. Exceptions can be made to the qualification requirements if the individual is able to bring unique skills of particular importance to the area of activity or to strengthen the area's links to wider society.

Adjunct senior lecturers and adjunct lecturers are appointed for a fixed term of two years in accordance with a central agreement.¹

Visiting professor

A visiting professor is appointed for a fixed term and shall meet the qualification requirements for appointment as a professor at the time of application (see Chapter 3 Section 3 of the Higher Education Act (HEA)). The individual shall have specific skills of value to the area of activity.

Joint appointment

An appointment as a professor or senior lecturer may be combined with appointment at a health care unit that hosts medical education and research (see Chapter 3 Section 8 of the HEA). A joint appointment is intended to bring clinical skills to teaching and research.

3 Basic appointment procedures

Once a need for recruitment has been identified, a decision has to be taken on the subject specialisation, qualification requirements and assessment criteria for the post (i.e. the person specification) and on the advertising of the vacancy.

3.1 Subject of appointment

The subject of appointments to professor, adjunct professor, visiting professor, senior lecturer, adjunct senior lecturer, associate senior lecturer, postdoctoral fellow, lecturer and adjunct lecturer shall be stated. The subject of the appointment shall be clearly stated and defined, based on the University's recruitment targets and equal opportunities plans. In order to achieve an even gender balance and increased diversity, the subject of the appointment should be broadly and sufficiently generally defined. If there are valid reasons, a subject specialisation can be indicated.

If the specialisation of the post changes over time, the subject title can also be changed. This can take place during an appointment if the title has become misleading or obsolete or in the context of an application for promotion.

3.2 Qualification requirements and assessment criteria

The general qualification requirements for academic staff are being suited to and having the general ability required to complete the duties of the post well. A person specification

In addition to the qualification requirements for each type of appointment stated below, further requirements shall be given in the person specification, where relevant. The assessment of candidates' qualifications shall be carried out on the basis of the appointment rules and the person specification drawn up for the appointment.

In the assessment of applicants with equal qualifications in terms of skills and development, consideration shall be given to any special circumstances that have affected the individual's professional development. Special circumstances could be absences due to illness, parental leave, professional activities, military service, trade union positions or similar circumstances.

For short-term appointments (not more than a year) or appointments of limited scope (not more than 20 per cent), there is no need to apply the requirement of five weeks of training in teaching and learning in higher education. In these cases, the appointee is to undertake teacher training adapted to the requirements of the duties of the post.

3.2.2 Establishing person specifications and advertising vacancies

A decision to announce a vacancy shall be based on strategic and comprehensive planning of skills requirements.

The announcement of a vacancy shall include the person specification established for the post and, in case of a fixed-term appointment, the period of employment.

The person specification shall clearly state the qualification requirements and assessment criteria stipulated in the appointment rules together with the additional requirements based on the strategic considerations and needs of the organisation.

The person specification and information about a vacant position as an associate senior lecturer shall also include the qualification requirements and assessment criteria for promotion. The qualification requirements for promotion shall be based on the requirements that apply to new recruitments of a senior lecturer. However, as in the case of recruitment, the requirements may be supplemented with further requirements related to the strategic considerations and needs of the organisation, in which case the extent to which it affected the period of employment must be stated.

3.3 General remarks on different preparatory bodies

The applications for an advertised post shall be processed in such a way that the most suitable applicant is appointed.

If a group of individuals are to submit a proposal on the applicants to be considered for appointment to a teaching post, women and men shall be equally represented in the group. This does not apply, however, if there are extraordinary reasons to the contrary (see Chapter 4 Section 5 of the Higher Education Ordinance)

Each faculty is to have at least one academic appointments board. Where necessary, the vice-chancellor can make a decision to establish a temporary academic appointments board. The academic appointments board is to submit proposals for appointments of professors (including adjunct and visiting professors). All or parts of the recruitment process for an appointment can be carried out by a recruitment committee. It is also possible to appoint a recruitment committee for the appointment to other positions (see Definitions below).

The academic appointments board shall comprise one chair, three academic staff representatives and two student representatives. In addition, at least two substitute academic staff representatives and at least one substitute student representatives shall be appointed. If the recruitment committee is to manage the whole appointment process it must include one student representative, one representative of the department and one member of the academic appointments board.

A working group is a small preparatory body at department level which is to include at least one student representative.

Appointment of a professor whose qualifications have already been assessed does not require processing by a preparatory body. This also applies to renewed appointments of adjunct professors, visiting professors or professors with artistic qualifications. The dean can propose appointments in these cases.

3.4.1 Sifting of applications

3.4.2 Expert assessment

For appointments to professor (including adjunct professor) or senior lecturer, at least one external expert shall assess the applicants' skill. An expert assessment does not need to be obtained if it is clear that this is not necessary for the assessment of the applicant's skills (cf Chapter 4 Section 6 HEO). Unless there are exceptional reasons, men and women shall be equally represented if an assessment is to be obtained from more than one person (cf Chapter 4 Section 6 HEO).

For appointments to associate senior lecturer, an external expert shall assess the applicants' research/artistic and teaching expertise, unless it is unnecessary for assessing the expertise.

If there is more than one expert, a joint description and/or assessment of the applicants' skill may be submitted. If there is disagreement, this shall be made clear in the statement. The expert(s) may be asked only to propose a shortlist without indicating any order of preference. The expert(s) shall always assess the applicants' teaching and academic/artistic skill on the basis of the person specification and the appointment rules, but may also be asked to assess other requirements or assessment criteria listed in the person specification.

3.4.3 Proposal

A decision on appointment must be based on a proposal.

3.5 Information about decisions on appointment

Information about decisions on appointment shall be given in accordance with Section 7 of the Employment Ordinance (1994:373).

If an appeal is entered against a decision on an appointment, a statement shall be submitted to the Higher Education Appeals Board.
